Opinion on-demand prompt:

Day Prior to Assessment:

“Think of a topic or issue that you know and care about, an issue around which you have strong feelings. Tomorrow, you will have forty-five minutes to write an opinion or argumentative text in which you will write your opinion or claim and tell reasons why you feel that way. When you do this, draw on everything you know about essays, persuasive letters, and reviews. If you want to find and use information from a book or another outside source, you may bring that with you tomorrow. Please keep in mind that you’ll have forty-five minutes to complete this, so you need to plan, draft, revise, and edit in one sitting.”

Day of Assessment:

“Writers, in fifteen minutes you will have a chance to do some opinion writing. Yesterday, you thought of a topic or idea that you have strong feelings about. Now is your chance to write to convince your readers of your opinion.”

“Do not start writing yet. For the next 15 minutes I want you to think about what you are going to write about. If you want to take notes and/or find information from books or other students, you can. Just make sure you are ready to write about your opinion and convince your readers.”

After 15 minutes:

“Now it is time for you to write your opinion piece. Remember, you will tell your readers about an idea or an opinion that you have strong feelings about. In your writing, write your opinion and convince your readers by telling them why you feel this way. Use everything you know about opinion writing--including letter writing, review writing, essay writing to make this your best opinion writing.”

“In your writing, make sure you:

- write an introduction.
- state your opinion or claim.
- give reasons and evidence.
- organize your writing.
- acknowledge counterclaims.
- use transition words.
- write a conclusion.”
